In The Next Issue

The next issue of Cancer Control: Journal of the Moffitt Cancer Center will focus on radioguided surgery for cancer. Among the topics and authors are:

“Lymphatic Mapping for Melanoma: Long-term Results of Regional Nodal Sampling With Radioguided Surgery,” by Erik M. Ramnath, MS, Deepa Kamath, A. Brobeil, Alec Stall, Vidya Kamath, C. Wayne Cruse, MD, Frank Glass, MD, Jane Messina, MD, Neil Fenske MD, Claudia Berman, MD, Alan Cantor, PhD, David Cuthbertson, MS, and Douglas S. Reintgen, MD, of the H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center & Research Institute, and Merrick I. Ross, MD, of the M.D. Anderson Cancer Center;

“A Multidisciplinary Approach to Locoregional Management of the Axilla for Primary Operable Breast Cancer,” by Benjamin O. Anderson, MD, Mary Austin-Seymour, MD, Julie Gralow, MD, Roger Moe, MD, and David R. Byrd, MD, of the University of Washington School of Medicine;

“The Technique of Intraoperative Nuclear Mapping to Facilitate Minimally Invasive Parathyroidectomy,” by James Norman, MD, of the University of South Florida College of Medicine; and “Radioimmunoguided Surgery for Gastrointestinal Malignancies: An Analysis of 14 Years of Clinical Experience,” by Deborah A. Martinez, MD, Emilio Barbera-Guillem, MD, PhD, Gregory J. LaValle, MD, and Edward W. Martin, Jr, MD, of the Ohio State University and the Arthur G. James Cancer Hospital.