Early Onset Colorectal Cancer as an Epidemic in the US: Recognizing the challenges in health care access and discussing the therapeutic approaches

Course Description: This course will intend to create awareness for increasing incidence of young onset colorectal cancer and will provide a comprehensive approach for epidemiology of young onset colorectal cancer, will define risks factors, and discuss biological characteristics. This course also will provide updates on therapeutic approaches for the management of young onset CRC.

Wednesday, April 27, 2022
5:30 – 7:00 pm
Register for this complimentary program to receive continuing education credit at: https://cvent.me/a8wdMV

SPEAKERS

Ibrahim Halil Sahin, MD
Assistant Professor
Department of Gastrointestinal Oncology
Moffitt Cancer Center

Jessica Frakes, MD
Associate Member,
Department of Radiation Oncology Program
Moffitt Cancer Center

Seth Felder MD
Assistant Member,
Department of Gastrointestinal Oncology
Moffitt Cancer Center

Mark Friedman, MD
Assistant Member,
Department of Gastrointestinal Oncology
Moffitt Cancer Center

For more information, contact:
Carmen.Brownlee@moffitt.org or at 813-745-4918